

Many Days Alone

The carnival that you hosted was where I first saw a radio and I just couldn't get over it.

Your house was so warm towards the left side of the little lake.

But I kept thinking about this radio ever since I saw it.

It utterly became my obsession and the obsession
has made me dull
and has even stunted my growth.

Even today it's on my mind!

Later in the carnival

I was aimlessly wandering - so many colors, so many sounds, so many faces

overwhelmed my hungry brain.
It was there I first met your eyes and what eyes I met!

I swear nobody else can pull off the blink that you had blinked.

Nobody!

Then one day just like that I gave up my all to you and at the same moment somehow borrowed from you
this life's load of debt.

But that's all an aside.

It's the radio that I saw in the carnival,
in your unusually warm house.
I just can't get over it.